Dolce & Gabbana's IRON MAN

Jon Hippensteel interviewed by Holly Glasser.

Jon Hippensteel, athlete and health guru, decided to overcome his fears and quit his finance job to start a new life as a world-traveling model. After 3 years on his new journey, he's had the pleasure of traveling to Chicago, London, Austria, Italy, Spain, Germany, and more. He manages to stay in amazing shape along the way, and he also maintains an extremely tasty and healthy diet. Part of his Instagram bio reads, "Be grateful, enjoy the journey, walk for D&G, and repeat. He believes there is no such thing as being bored, always being in a state of learning and growth. We love his ambitious dreamer spirit, his brave attitude, and his super friendly disposition. Read more to be truly inspired by this super guy!

MITH: Jon! So tell us, where are you from and how did you get into modeling? What did you do before you became a model?

JH: I grew up in the country on 10+ acres in Pennsylvania. After moving to California and studying finance at Pepperdine University in Malibu, I worked in banking in Los Angeles for almost four years. I never felt like I was a good fit in the corporate world, having to wear a suit and tie and sit behind a desk most of the day. Still, I was scared to leave the security I had there. In 2012, some friends encouraged me to consider modeling. Long story short, I felt myself being called into the unknown—fashion was completely foreign to me at the time, and whether that was the destination or a stepping-stone, it was undeniable that I had a solid support base in fashion helping me in this transition. I quit my job at the end of 2012 and moved back to my family's home, now in Tennessee, and then up to Chicago in May 2013, where I had signed with Factor|Chosen Model Management.

MITH: What is one of your favorite bookings you've had so far?

JH: Last September, I booked a job through my San Francisco agent as a character in a video game. The studio was a giant RV trailer with 120 cameras encircling with me in the center. I cycled through about 50+ different facial expressions and then another 50+ body positions, and each time I changed, all 120 cameras fired simultaneously. It was so awesome! I can't talk about what game it is but it's an RPG that comes out this fall and I can't wait to buy the game. I don't even play video games but I'll probably buy it and take it to a friend's house to "play my character" Ha!

MITH: What words of advice would you give to other models starting out?

JH: Always be ready and always be available. Know your worth and what you stand for because if you don't, there are plenty of people in this industry who will take advantage of that.

MITH: What other dreams do you have outside of modeling?

JH: Well, being abroad so much, I've really enjoyed getting to learn the foreign languages of the places I'm in. I want to become fluent in German and at least two other languages besides English!

MITH: Oh, do tell us some of your favorite phrases.

JH: In Deutschland, I would often say at a casting, "Hallo, wie geht's? Ich heiße Jonathan und ich liebe Deutschland!" In Italy, I would say, "Come stai? Tutto bene, mi chiamo Jonathan, sto imperando l'italiano e io sono Americano! Mi piace Milano!"

MITH: That's a lot of fun. Tell us your other dreams.

JH: I want to travel to 100 countries! I really would love to start speaking more to high school and college kids and inspiring them to pursue a career in something they are passionate about. The majority of people in America hate their job, and I used to be one of them. Life is too short to not love your work. I'm not necessarily passionate about modeling, but I am passionate about doing my best to serve everyone I meet and work with, having purposeful conversations with them, learning new languages wherever I go, and traveling and experiencing foreign cultures. So I want to use any influence I have to inspire others. That's one of the main reasons I loved racing Ironman triathlons so much, because it really inspires people to work hard for their goals, and that anything is possible. Your purpose can be found at the intersection of what you love, what you're talented at, what the world needs, and what you can get paid for doing: Passion, Mission, Vocation and Profession = Purpose! Go after it!
